The New Mexico Coalition Against Domestic Violence (NMCADV) plays a vital role in working to end domestic violence. Our goal is to achieve a coordinated local, regional, and statewide response to domestic violence through public awareness, education, training, technical assistance, and legislative and policy advocacy. The Coalition serves as a clearinghouse for information and referrals. We collaborate with agencies and advocates in the areas of program development, public policy, education, training, and funding proposals.

Training

The Coalition offers a variety of training opportunities to domestic violence programs, workplaces, and community groups. Please contact the Coalition about your training needs. All Coalition trainings are offered at no cost.

Membership

Coalition membership is designated at two levels:

- Full Membership
- Affiliate Membership

Description
A New Day is a 501c3 multi-service agency providing clinical services, educational programs, and emergency shelter to low income, at-risk youth and their families at outpatient offices, The Shelter, and many school sites.

Who we serve: youth ages 11 to 17 who have been abused, neglected, abandoned, or exploited— and those who have runaway. We offer temporary emergency shelter while we work to arrange safe and secure long-term placements.

What we provide: a safe, secure, and structured stable environment with a homelike atmosphere. Our services include emergency response to those in need and treatment services for behavior and mental health issues.

Our goal: to place each young person into a safe and stable environment. Many are reunited with families after counseling. Others are placed with relatives, foster families, or adoptive parents. Some move into transitional housing, while others enroll in vocational training programs.

The mission of Family Services is two-fold: the protection of victims of family violence through intervention and prevention services; and secondly, striving to decrease the incidents of domestic violence by providing services and prevention classes to community members, other Indian communities, and other agencies. We recognize that accountability by the battering family member is a vital factor to addressing family violence. We strongly support violence-free home environments, violence-free families, and marital and dating relationships that encourage the respect, dignity, and integrity of each family member. Family Services does not shelter male victims but will assist in finding other shelter.

The Domestic Violence Early Intervention Program (DVEIP) is a court program designed to address first-time misdemeanor domestic violence offenses with court supervision and treatment. The goal is to provide effective intervention to offenders who are willing to take responsibility for their behavior and make the necessary changes to prevent future domestic abuse and violence. The program is voluntary; however, the defendant must meet eligibility requirements and be approved by the program judge. The District Attorney must also agree to dismiss the charges if the defendant successfully completes the program. If the defendant fails to successfully complete the program, the case is referred back to court for prosecution.

The Domestic Violence Repeat Offenders Program (DVROP) is a new court program which offers an alternative to incarceration to misdemeanor domestic violence repeat offenders and support services to victims and children. A conviction via plea or trial is entered and the offender is placed in the one-year program. Offenders are intensely supervised, seeing a probation officer, attending counseling two or three times per week and attending bi-monthly reviews with the program judge. DVROP is a zero-tolerance program, meaning any and all violations result in immediate sanctions, which include community service, jail or termination. If the offender is terminated, it is likely the full jail sentence will be imposed with no credit for the time spent in the program. Successful completion of the program results in completion of sentence with no other penalties imposed; however, the conviction still remains on record.

New Mexico Legal Aid (NMLA) provides free civil legal services to (mostly) low income persons and families in all parts of New Mexico, except San Juan county, through offices located in Albuquerque, Gallup, Las Cruces, Las Vegas, Mescalero, Roswell, Santa Fe, Santa Ana Pueblo, Silver City, Socorro, and Taos. Persons seeking assistance in San Juan county should call DNA-People’s Legal Services’ Farmington office at (505) 325-8886.

Services
Because requests for services far exceed program resources, NMLA evaluates each case individually. The priority areas of law include:

- Fair Housing and Landlord/Tenant
- Government Benefits
- Family Matters
- Domestic Violence
- Consumer

NMLA receives funds from CYFD and The Department of Justice VAWA grant to provide representation for survivors of domestic violence and their children. Using these funds, NMLA can provide assistance for any survivor of domestic violence, regardless of income and citizenship status. (Many other services are available only to citizens or lawful residents.)

NMLA serves survivors of domestic violence primarily by referral from a domestic violence provider. Providers seeking representation for their clients should contact their nearest NMLA office to set up a referral procedure. Provider staff or survivors seeking information about a legal issue (family law, housing, government benefits, etc.) should call Law Access New Mexico, a statewide hotline providing free legal advice on a broad range of legal issues, at: 1-800-340-9771.
